WASHINGTON.

The Senate Passes Frye's Fisheries Resolution.

REPORT ON THE TELEPHONE SUIT

Favorable Report on the Bill to Allot Lands in Severalty to Indians—The Rumored Cabinet Changes—Oregon Affairs—Etc.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Turner of Georgia called up as a privileged question the contested case of Hurd vs. Romeis, Rogan refraining from antagonizing it with the interstate commerce bill, with an understanding that this measure should lose none of its rights as the special order. Doyle of Pennsylvania opened the debate in support of the majority report and quoted from evidence to support him in his position that there was not only no ground for unseating Romeis, but scarcely any ground for contesting the seat. Several speeches were made on the contested election case, when the house adjourned.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Platt took the floor on his resolution relating to open executive sessions. The question was a political one, he said, but in no sense a question of party politics. It rose above all party questions. It was the most important question of administrative reform to which the senate could at this time devote its attention. The debate was continued at length on secret executive sessions.

After considerable debate Frye's resolution in relation to the Canadian fisheries question was brought to a vote and agreed to; yeas 35, nays 10. Of the affirmative votes twenty-six were republican and nine democrats, the democrats being Brown, Butler, Fair, Gorman, Harris, McPherson, Maxey, Morgan and Payne. The negative votes were all democrats, being Call, Cockrell, Coke, Colquitt, Eustis, Gray, Pugh, Vance, Voorhees and Walthall. A number of pairs with absent senators were announced. The resolution declares it to be the sense of the senate that congress should not provide for any joint commission to consider and settle the fisheries question.

The interstate commerce bill was then placed before the senate in order that it may have the right of way at 2 o'clock to-morrow.

After an executive session the senate adjourned.

The Minority of the Judiciary Committee Submit Two Reports

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Two reports by the minority of the judiciary committee upon the resolution of the sub-committee to that committee inquiring into the power of the government to institute suit at the instance of private corporations to annul patents, were presented to the house to-day. The first report, which is signed by Messrs. Parker, F. B. Taylor, Hepburn and Caswell, after an exhaustive review of precedents arrived at the following conclusions:

First—That authentic authority to cancel or annul a patent of an invention or discovery in a suit between private parties on the ground that the same was obtained by fraudulent collusion with officers of the government or surreptitiously by or upon a false suggestion does not exist.

Second—That public interests require that authority should exist in the government, under proper restriction, to bring suit in the name of the United States, to expel and annul any such patent so obtained.

Third—That under the statutes and decisions of the United States it is a matter of grave doubt whether authority now exists permitting suit by the United States to annul any patent as above stated, which doubt can only be determined by decision of the court of last resort.

Fourth—That in case it shall be authoritatively decided that a right to bring suit for cancellation of a patent claimed to have been obtained by fraudulent collusion with officers of the government or surreptitiously, by or upon false suggestion, rests with an officer of the government acting upon his own motion or at the instance of another, according to his judgment, or at his pleasure, to attack in the name and at the expense of the United States any patent now in life or such as may at any time exist, with no restraints or limitations except such as shall appertain to judicial procedure after suit is commenced, it is a power and responsibility that congress should place, define and restrict. That in case it shall be decided that no authority exists on the part of any officer or department of the government to institute such suit, it is equally the duty of congress to establish and limit such power.

This minority recommends the enactment of a bill conferring the necessary power upon the attorney-general to bring suit at the request of the secretary of the interior, in which no issue shall be litigated that can be determined in private suit.

Messrs. Ranney and J. W. Stewart unite in a second minority report holding that there is no authority for a suit in the name of the United States brought for the purpose of vacating a patent for an invention except when it is based upon a state of facts which cannot be regarded by a court and made available in an infringement suit, and that in no case can the name of the government be properly lent to a suit in the interest only of private parties.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS ITEMS.

DINGLEY'S FISHERY RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The house committee on foreign affairs to-day considered Mr. Dingley's resolution relative to Canadian fishery regulations, and after striking out a preamble reciting acts on the part of the Canadian government in contravention of the principles of international law, the committee directed a favorable report upon the resolution as follows:

Resolved, That the president be requested to furnish the house, if compatible with public interests, with any information in his possession relative to the exclusion of American fishing vessels from ports of entry of the dominion of Canada for the purposes of trading, purchasing supplies, or landing fish caught in deep water for shipment in bond to the United States, or doing any other acts which Canadian and other British vessels are freely permitted to do in ports of the United States, and also to inform the house what steps, if any, have been taken to bring such unwarrantable [illegible] acts of the dominion authorities to the attention of the British government.

FOR RELIEF OF CERTAIN OFFICERS.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The house committee on military affairs to-day agreed to a favorable report upon the bill of Representative Laird for the relief of certain officers of the volunteer army. It provides that all soldiers of the late war of the rebellion who having re-enlisted as veteran volunteers received commissions as officers in the army shall be paid all installments of veteran bounty with interest, which were withheld from them respectively on being so commissioned and mustered, provided that all soldiers of the late war who were discharged to receive promotion shall be entitled to receive the same bounty with interest that they would have been entitled to had they served as enlisted men for the full term of their enlistment; provided further that all volunteer soldiers or sailors of the late war who were honorably discharged on account of disease contracted in line of duty shall receive the same bounty that they would have been entitled to had they been discharged on account of wounds.

AMENDMENT TO THE POSTOFFICE BILL.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Frye to-day reported favorably from the committee on commerce an amendment intended to be proposed to the postoffice appropriation bill. It increases the appropriation for transportation of foreign mails from $[illegible] to $1,000,000, and provides that this amount shall include the cost of railway transit across the isthmus of Panama. The amendment further changes the bill so as to direct the postmaster-general to enter into contracts with American built and registered steamships, whenever possible, for the transportation of any part of said foreign mails after legal advertisement with the lowest responsible bidder at a rate not to exceed fifty cents per nautical mile on the trip each way actually traveled between terminal points, provided, however, that the aggregate of such contracts shall not exceed $[illegible] of the sum hereby appropriated.

TO ALLOT LANDS IN SEVERALTY.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The house committee on Indian affairs have agreed to favorable report on the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Dawes to provide for allotting lands in severalty to Indians. The committee has amended the bill by providing for an issue of individual instead of tribal patents in all cases. The section authorizing the secretary of the interior to sell Indian lands in excess of allotments has been stricken out, leaving to congress the power to determine the procedure in each case of the sale of reservation lands. A section has also been added, requiring the consent of a majority of adult male Indians of any tribe before the allotments shall be made.

CONFIRMATIONS.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—John A. McClernand to be member of the board of registration and election of Utah; Robert Lowen of Indian territory, agent of the Union agency, Indian territory; N. G. Farney of Washington territory, receiver at Spokane Falls, W. T.; M. D. Baldwin of Ohio, agent of the Blackfoot agency, Montana; postmaster, W. A. McGarvey, Salinas, Cal.

BILLS TO BE REPORTED.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The public lands committee of the house to-day agreed to report the bill repealing the pre-emption, timber culture and desert land laws, the bill forfeiting certain lands granted to the state of Wisconsin for railroad purposes, and the bill forfeiting the Ontonagon & State Line railway grant in Michigan.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The following have been announced members of the democratic congressional committee: Connecticut, Mitchell; New Jersey, McAdoo; Delaware, Moore; Pennsylvania, Ermentrout; New York, Spriggs; Ohio, Wilkens; Texas, Crain; Iowa, Murphy; Tennessee, McMillan; Missouri, Burns; Georgia, Chandler; Virginia, Daniel; Arkansas, Dunn; Florida, Davidson; South Carolina, Dibble; Kentucky, Robertson; California, Henley; Michigan, Maybury; Maryland, Compton; Wisconsin, Bragg; Indiana, Ford; Illinois, Worthington; Louisiana, Blanchard; Mississippi, Catchings; Alabama, Martin; North Carolina, Green; West Virginia, Snyder.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

SECRETARY MANNING IMPROVING.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Dr. Hamilton said to-day that Secretary Manning is still improving and is now able to sit up a short time every day.

Secretary Manning is to-day reported to be progressing favorably toward complete recovery, and it is believed by those nearest to him that if he has no setbacks he will be able to resume general direction of the treasury department before hot weather begins, and to take up his labors of office work again immediately after the summer vacation.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The nearest friends of Secretary Manning say that it is settled that he will not attempt to resume his duties at the treasury department, as it now seems probable he should partially recover his health. [illegible] that when he has been so far restored that his physicians will permit him to travel he will take a sea voyage and that he will then be appointed minister to Austria.

CHICAGO, April 13.—The Inter Ocean's Washington special says: The opinion is general that Manning will not resume his duties as secretary of the treasury on account of his shattered health. In consequence of this a successor for Manning has been discussed among democratic leaders, and it is intimated that the president has had communication with Randall and a few other confidential friends on this subject. The names of Randall and Scott of Pennsylvania have been mentioned in this connection. Many of those who are close to the president, however, express the opinion that should Manning retire Secretary Whitney will be transferred to the treasury, and that Scott or Hewitt of New York will succeed Whitney in the navy department.

OREGON AFFAIRS.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Senator Dolph gave an elegant dinner party this evening. The following persons were present: Chief Justice Waite, Senator Edmunds, Justice Harlan, Justice Miller, Senator Morrill, Justice Woods, Senator Hoar, Justice Blatchford, Senator Evarts, Senator Conger, Senator Ingalls, Senator Allison, Justice Gray, Justice Mathews and Justice Field.

A memorial from the Oregon legislature was presented to the senate some time ago. It prayed that a portion of the Siletz Indian reservation be thrown open to settlement. The memorial was referred to the committee on Indian affairs, who sent it to the bureau of Indian affairs, which sent it to Indian Agent Wadsworth at Siletz reservation, with a request that he make a statement as to the advisability of opening part of the reservation to the public. The agent returned a vigorous protest against granting the request of the Oregon state legislature. He said the Indians will soon need all the land in the reservation, and that valuable improvements are in that portion which the memorial wants thrown open to settlement. The bureau of Indian affairs has reported adversely to the senate committee on Indian affairs to the proposition of opening any portion of the reservation, and the committee will doubtless make a similar report to the senate.

The secretary of war has announced to Congressman Hermann that there remains about $[illegible] to be expended on the Umpqua river below Scottsburg, and that when that is expended a recommendation will be made for a further appropriation.

COIN STATISTICS.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The United States treasury has prepared a statement showing that net gold coin and bullion in the treasury April 10th was $153,620,8[illegible], an increase of $27,71[illegible] since January 1st last. Also that the amount of standard silver dollars in circulation April 10th, out of the total coinage of $[illegible], was $52,5[illegible]. On July 1st last the amount in circulation was $[illegible], out of a total coinage of $205,[illegible]. Total coinage during the first ten days of the present month amounts to $[illegible]. During the same period the circulation was $[illegible].

NOMINATION.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The president to-day nominated Samuel H. Wagner to be postmaster at San Jose, California.

CALIFORNIA.

THE SAN FRANCISCO RACES.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—The second day's meeting of the Blood Horse association brought out only a small attendance. The weather was stormy and the track very heavy, but the sport was excellent.

The first race, purse, seven-eighths of a mile, all ages, was won by [illegible], the favorite, by three lengths; [illegible] second; time [illegible].

Vernal stakes, two-year-old fillies, five-eighths of a mile, won by Glendora by a length; Lady Vera second; Miss Ford third; time [illegible].

Ocean stakes, three-year-olds, mile and a quarter, was the event of the day. The starters were King Norfolk, Mozart, Ben Ali, Estrella, Calama and [illegible]. In this race the celebrated jockey Isaac Murphy made his debut on Estrella to a California audience and was enthusiastically received. They got away at the first attempt to a good start, Mozart slightly in the lead, closely followed by Pitt and Ben Ali. Passing the stand Mozart led by two lengths, followed by Estrella and King Norfolk, the others bunched and close up. They raced in this order until the half was reached, where King of Norfolk moved up to second place. At the three quarters Mozart gave way, while King Norfolk and Ben Ali moved to the front. Ben Ali quickly drew away and came in winner by a length; King Norfolk second, Estrella a very good third; time [illegible].

Last race, selling purse, mile and an eighth, all ages. Ingleside was first away to a good start and kept the lead until near the finish, where he was passed by Billy Ayres, who won by half a length; Duke of Moray third; time [illegible].

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—The boycott does not send the heathen flying home to the flowery kingdom with such degree of celerity as was expected. The steamship City of Rio de Janeiro, which sailed for the orient to-day, taking but fifty Chinese.

U. S. Attorney Hilborn said to-day on the Chinese question: There is a great deal of talk about abrogating the Burlingame treaty. Well, suppose congress should do so, what would be the result? Why, worse than ever. They might come here a thousand at a time and then, instead of landing, swear that they were born here, and are consequently citizens of the United States. They would be entitled to writs of habeas corpus, and when a hearing came up, what would prevent them from bringing an old midwife, Chinese nurse, or half a dozen witnesses to swear that they were born here at some particular place in Chinatown.

FRUIT CROP PROSPECTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Reports received to-night from twenty eight of the fruit and grain counties of the state show that the heavy rains of the last four days, instead of injuring, have largely benefited crops, especially late sown grain. In some few instances early sown wheat has lodged, but reports clearly show that any injury done to advanced grain will be more than counterbalanced by benefit to late sown grain. Prospects at this moment for an immense wheat crop of good quality were never better in the history of the state. Fruit and grape prospects are equally good, the rains having done no injury beyond retarding cultivation.

INVESTIGATION OF THE COLLISION.

The investigation by the United States inspector of steam vessels into the causes leading to the collision of the steamship State of California and the barkentine Portland was to have been resumed this morning by the taking of the testimony of the barkentine's crew. They were notified yesterday to be in attendance to-day, but not one of them appeared or sent a reason for not coming. Capt. Freeman, inspector, stated that if they did not come willingly and give their evidence he would subpoena them and have the United States marshal bring them in.

HOTELS FILLED.

If the railroads do not [illegible] much more [illegible] present cut rates the hotels and [illegible] from the unusual influx of visitors. For the last [illegible] all of the hotels are full to overflowing, and all of them are compelled to turn away guests daily for want of room to accommodate them. People who have rooms to rent in the central portion of the city also find plenty of people to occupy them, while restaurants are busy from morning to night.

THE BOWERS MURDER TRIAL.

Testimony in the trial of Dr. J. M. Bowers, charged with the murder of his wife by poisoning, was concluded to-day and adjournment taken until Thursday, when argument will take place. The trial has been one of the longest of its kind on the coast, it having occupied six weeks. Testimony taken in short hand, when transcribed, will make five volumes of 800 type written pages each.

BUSINESS FAILURE.

SAN JOSE, April 13.—Leopold Hart, dry goods merchant, has filed a petition in insolvency. His liabilities in San Francisco and San Jose exceed $[illegible], and his assets in merchandise and bills are represented to be nearly equal to that amount.

THE STATE PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

SALEM, April 13.—By trains arriving this afternoon about seventy five delegates came from various parts of the state to attend the prohibition convention, which meets to-morrow morning. To-night an informal reception of delegates is being held in W. C. T. U. hall. The attendance of townspeople is large and the occasion is an interesting social event.

Word reaches here to-night that Greenberry Smith of Polk county is at the point of death.

Wholesale Arrest of Ex-Aldermen in New York.

THE GREAT STRIKE DYING OUT.

A Boycott that Failed to Boycott—Lawrence Barrett Talks about President Cleveland—Early Talk for Blaine—Etc.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Thomas Cleary, Michael Duffy, Louis Wendel, Rudolph Fullgraff, Arthur J. McQuade, Thomas Shiels, Patrick Farley, John O'Neil and Henry L. Sayles, members of the board of aldermen in 1884, were all arrested this morning. The charges against them are similar to those against the aldermen previously arrested, namely, the acceptance of bribes for their votes on the Broadway railroad franchise question. They were all taken to the police headquarters and locked up. Messengers were immediately sent out in search of their bondsmen. Thomas Cleary is a member of the present board of aldermen.

At 11:20 this morning ex-Alderman Francis McCabe was arrested. Alderman Fink, of the 1884 board, is now the only one in the city not arrested.

PLACED UNDER SURVEILLANCE.

NEW YORK, April 13.—When District Attorney Martine placed in Police Inspector Byrnes's hands last evening warrants for the arrest of aldermen and ex-aldermen, it was decided to place them under surveillance, but not to arrest them until this morning. At 6 o'clock orders were issued from the central office to bring the accused aldermen in. The first one who passed through what is known as the "Aldermen's gate" was Michael Duffy. He was indignant at his arrest. His mind changed to amazement when one after the other his ex-colleagues were led in after him. It looked as though the board of 1884 had come to life again and was about to hold another early morning extra session. Col. O'Byrne, counsel for ex-Alderman Tony Shields, went before Judge Andrews in supreme court chambers and obtained a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of his client, requiring him to be forthwith produced in the court of oyer and terminer and the cause of his detention inquired into. Recorder Smythe fixed bail at $25,000 in each case. The aldermen all looked unhappy while awaiting the arrival of their bondsmen.

At 11:00 the grand jury entered the court of general session with indictments charging twelve of the board of aldermen of 1884 with bribery. The indictments are similar to those presented against Jaehne, vice president of the present board, and member of that of 1884, and ex-Aldermen Kirk and [illegible].

Messengers were sent into all quarters of the city in search of bondsmen, who quickly appeared. As the news spread through the city personal and political friends of the victims hurried to police headquarters, and the corridors were rapidly crowded.

THE LABOR TROUBLES.

The Great Strike Dying Out and the Men Returning to Work

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—The whole force of strikers of the St. Louis transfer company, confident of protection by the militia from molestation, have returned to their old places, and transfer wagons together with private trucks and other vehicles are busy this morning hauling freight to the various railroad depots in East St. Louis. The force of switch and yardmen who returned to work yesterday was increased this morning by many more who availed themselves of military protection to secure employment. Most of the roads have now crews of switch and yardmen. Yesterday the bridge company was not able to secure a sufficient number of men to handle all the freight that the roads were offering, but to-day several more men resumed work at their old positions and the company is doing business almost as large as before the strike. In the yards across the river the switch engines have been running backwards and forwards all the morning making up trains. Two trains have been sent out by the Burlington, and the Wabash has sent out a train, and those belonging to other roads in the yards will soon follow.

No disturbance occurred during last night or morning beyond the firing of a shot at three o'clock this morning in the Illinois & St. Louis yards by one of the sentries at a man crawling along the ground between two freight trains and who would not heed orders to halt.

THE STRIKE DYING OUT.

Information from Sedalia, Mo., indicates that the strike is dying out there. New men are going to work daily, generally of the class most needed, Mechanics, and many of the old men are leaving for other places in search of work, not being able to remain idle any longer. Several will go to California. The master car builder says he has all the men he needs at present and that his department is fully well supplied at Parsons and Hannibal. At a meeting of the Knights at Sedalia Sunday resolutions were adopted heartily endorsing General Master Workman Powderly and all his acts, condemning all violence and lawlessness that had been committed, and favoring the present action of the petition to the general executive board for a modification of the constitution and bylaws of the order so that no strike or boycott can be ordered except by direction and under supervision of the general executive committee.

A CITIZENS' MEETING HELD.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—At a mass meeting of citizens here to-night called to order by Chauncey I. Filley, at which Dr. Thomas O'Reilly acted as chairman, a long preamble and resolution was read and unanimously adopted setting forth the depressing effects of the strike and recommending the appointment of a committee of citizens of St. Louis, three from resident directors of railways interested, three from resident laborers interested, and three discreet and recognized representatives of the mercantile, manufacturing and professional classes, to confer and arrange, if possible, to end the existing troubles. The committee was ordered to report at an adjourned meeting to be called by the chairman for that purpose.

AID FOR THE STRIKERS.

NEW YORK, April 13.—One effect of the strike in the Southwest has been temporarily to stop bickering in this city between different factions among the laboring organizations. It is estimated that the trades unions of New York and Brooklyn alone will furnish, if called upon, between $5,000 and $10,000 weekly for support of the strikers. The movement to raise money to fight Jay Gould is not confined to Knights of Labor, but trade unions outside the order have promised to come forward. Texas is the true issue, the strikers admit. Knights of Labor of Brooklyn issued an appeal yesterday to the residents of that city to forward contributions to the Southwest strikers.

Jay Gould has received a letter of encouragement from N. Wardner, president of the general conference of the Wesleyan Methodists. President Wardner's great prominence in religious circles makes it interesting. In it he says: "I feel constrained to write you my congratulations for the stand you have taken against the Knights of Labor. Unless the growing powers of these secret combinations are in some way broken up the country is ruined and its business enterprise destroyed."

A BOYCOTT THAT FAILED TO BOYCOTT.

A Plucky New York Woman Stands Up for her Rights, and is Sustained by the Public

NEW YORK, April 13.—Mrs. Esther Gray keeps a small bakery in Hudson street, where she employs five bakers. Last week a committee of the German bakers' union waited on her and ordered her to make her men join the union. She called up her five bakers and asked if they wanted to join the union, and they replied that they were perfectly satisfied as they were. Then the German bakers told her they would boycott her and charge her $25 a day for the expenses of the boycott. At this she took a broom and drove the boycotters out of her shop. Since then union men have been distributing circulars in front of her bakery warning people not to enter her shop, and have ordered the neighboring grocers to stop buying bread of her. Great interest has been taken in the boycott, and people from all over the city have ordered bread of her to be sent to their houses and to be given to hospitals and to the poor. Yesterday she received [illegible] for bread ordered to be sent to hospitals. Of this Charles Crocker, the California millionaire, sent $50 with the following letter:

"I have read in the newspapers about your struggles with boycotting bakers and I have admired your pluck and your determination to maintain your rights under the laws of your country. I herewith enclose you $50 and desire you to set aside every day and keep account of this money, and deliver a certain quantity of bread to poor people until the fund is exhausted. I send this to show my appreciation of your efforts in the cause of justice and freedom. I hope that you will be sustained through this tyrannical attempt to dictate to you in the conduct of your business. We live in a free country, or pretend it is free. No matter whether a laborer or an aristocrat sets up to deny to others rights they claim for themselves, they are equally responsible. It is the worst kind of tyranny, and a kingly government of Europe would be ashamed to exercise or allow the exercise of such tyranny under their authority. I hope that you will be sustained in maintaining your rights and independence, and that your business will prove successful."

Mrs. Gray's business yesterday was the biggest she ever did.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS.

LAWRENCE BARRETT AND THE PRESIDENT.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Lawrence Barrett, the tragedian, is reported in the Augusta Constitution as giving rather a pathetic picture of President Cleveland. Barrett says: "I spent a day with him a short time ago when I was in Washington, and really he presented a pathetic picture of a strong man fighting alone the great battle to which he is pledged, ridiculed by his enemies and doubted by his friends. He feels his position keenly. He said to me: 'I have made mistakes. I see them—many of them—and could kick myself when I think about them, but I am only human, and as liable to err as other men; but I am not given generous sympathy and honest patriotic counsel. All I hear is bickering and strife and fault finding among scheming politicians, who have no aim but to get themselves and their friends in office. But for an occasional wave of popular indorsement that breaks its way over the reef of office-seekers and politicians that hedge me about, and comes to me like a sense of refreshment and a cry of God-speed direct from the people, I should break down heart sick and discouraged.'"

TALKING FOR BLAINE.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Tribune says: Samuel Fessenden of Connecticut, secretary of the republican national committee, was in the city a day or two ago. When asked about politics he said: "It looks very Blainish. There does not seem to be anybody else. He can get the Irish vote and the labor vote as no other man. The tide in his favor in the party seems to be stronger than ever. The failure of Cleveland's administration has made Blaine strong. The administration has gone all to pieces since Manning was taken sick. There is no administration party in the South or elsewhere to hold votes away from Blaine in the national convention. He will get a large vote from the South, and he will get many more votes from New York State than ever before for the same reason."

THE WRECKED OREGON.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Mail and Express asserts that on Sunday last a diver of the Merritt wrecking company went down and made an examination of the sunken steamer Oregon and ascertained beyond question that she was sunk by a collision. Ten feet below the main deck and about twenty feet forward of the bridge the diver found a hole in the steamer's side. The heavy iron plates are crushed in. The hole is six feet deep and three feet in breadth at the widest part. The steamer is broken in two, and her upper decks are [illegible] over twelve feet of top. Most of her cargo will be saved.

RACE HORSES TO BE SOLD.

NEW YORK, April 13.—It was announced yesterday that Mrs. George L. Lorillard has decided to sell the horses now in training, property of her late husband, which have been entered for stakes to be run at Jerome park, Sheepshead bay and Monmouth park. The sale will take place on the [illegible]th.

HOLD DEPUTY SHERIFFS RESPONSIBLE.

A CIRCULAR TO THE POWERS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13.—The porte has sent to the powers a circular declaring that as Bulgaria has settled its dispute with them it becomes necessary to put a stop to the bellicose conduct of Greece, as it is compelling Turkey to support an enormous military outlay.

The yacht Izzedin is now ready to convey to Livadia, in Crimea, a special mission from the sultan to the czar, congratulating him on the outcome of the Bulgarian trouble.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

KILLED BY VANCOUVER WHISKY.

VANCOUVER, April 13.—Private James Ward of company H, Fourteenth U. S. infantry, was found dead this morning at the government hospital gate, with a bottle of Vancouver whisky in his pocket. No cause is assigned for death except too much of this ardent. He was an Englishman, aged about 45 years. This was his fourth enlistment. He will be buried with military honors to-morrow. This is the fifth man of this regiment who has died suddenly since the Fourteenth came to Vancouver.

Why Potter was Promoted.

Washington Special.

It is learned that the promotion of Col. Potter to brigadier general was secured mainly through the influence of ex-Senator Thurman, to whom Potter is said to be related. The selection of Col. Potter has created the impression that the president's action was prompted by the desire to aid an old and faithful officer, that he might be retired from the higher grade. It is apparent, however, that Mr. Thurman's choice rather than any desire of the president in the matter was the moving lever. The influence of politicians in securing the promotions of officers is very much deprecated at the war department. It is believed that in these cases the recommendations of the military authorities should alone be considered, as they alone are fully acquainted with the varied abilities of the army officers. The selection of Col. Potter has created the impression that upon his retirement in October next he will be followed by Col. Wilcox, who in turn will be succeeded in April 1887 by one of the younger colonels.

Leave Senator Jones Alone.

Savannah News (Dem).

All of the senators absent themselves from the senate when they are sick until they get well. Mr. Jones is sick—love sick—and it is unkind to insist that he shall return to his duties before he is in prime condition for work. While he is suffering from this love sickness, which in his case seems to be remarkably severe, what is the use for him to try to attempt to attend to legislative matters? He couldn't do it. He would only be in the way. He couldn't make an argument on the constitution because his mind is running upon love.

Continuation of the Debate on Gladstone's Scheme.

HARCOURT SPEAKS FOR THE BILL.

The Opposition Assailed at their Weak Point—More Remarks by Gladstone—The Earl of Shaftesbury Kills Himself

LONDON, April 13.—Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer, to-night resumed the debate on the Irish bill in the house of commons. He began by saying that those who condemned the government's measure failed to state an acceptable alternative scheme. Nobody accepted Mr. Trevelyan's plan. Mr. Chamberlain's project was in turn repudiated by Lord Hartington and Mr. Trevelyan. Mr. Chamberlain had propounded a scheme of great importance, but that scheme had never been submitted to the government. He (Mr. Chamberlain) has recommended federation; what were to be those separate bodies in Great Britain and Ireland which were to be the subject matter of the federation recommended? Mr. Chamberlain had a plan to stay evictions by act of parliament; who was agreed to that policy? Had he got the adhesion of Lord Hartington? Had he got the adhesion of Mr. Goschen, or the adhesion of the right honorable gentleman and noble lord opposite? If he had not, the speaker should like to know how it is that it was a practical policy? Lord Hartington had said he did not admit the impossibility of governing Ireland by a mingled system of remedial and repressive legislation. It was to the administration of Lord Spencer that he thought the government of Ireland ought to be restored. It had been stated by Lord Hartington that whatever the fate of this measure was, the mere introduction of it by a responsible government would do much that could never be recalled. That was perfectly true, but it was equally true of the events of last June. The consequences of those events could never be recalled. Those events had entirely changed the whole aspect of the Irish question. The course then taken made home rule inevitable. [Cries of "Oh, oh," and laughter.]

THE OPPOSITION TAUNTED.

The speaker taunted the opponents to this measure with having no basis for an agreement on an Irish policy. Did Mr. Goschen, he asked, approve Mr. Chamberlain's plan for a central council at Dublin or the suspension of evictions? Had the conservative leaders any policy except condemnation of Mr. Gladstone's scheme?

Lord Randolph Churchill—Yes. They are against repeal in any shape or form. [Cheers.]

The speaker retorted that that might mean as much as Lord Beaconsfield's denunciation of the £5 franchise, at the very moment when he desired to carry through the household suffrage measure. [Laughter.]

Continuing he said the fact was that there was no alternative to the plan of the government except the severest coercion. This would require a strong government, a government determined, persistent, in harmony with itself, supported by an overwhelming majority in parliament and in the country. Such a government had been dreamed of as resulting from a truce in party spirit and an end of party warfare, but it was not by the breaking up of parties that a strong government could be formed.

THE IRISH IN AMERICA.

"Reference," continued the speaker, "has been made to the Irish in America. This house cannot for a moment be influenced by the action of dastardly assassins like Ford and others. But the Irish nation in America is as numerous as the Irish are at home. All possess the same instinct and the same sympathies. They have not been parties to the action of assassins. ["Hear, hear."] These actions of assassins receive universal condemnation from the people of the United States. [Irish and liberal cheers.] But if we reject this bill do you believe, are you sure, there will not be sympathy with these assassins and with their schemes? [Hisses and cries of "Oh! Oh!"] I believe there will be universal condemnation and disapprobation from right thinking people (Irish and American) of such treatment of the Irish people. [Irish cheers.]"

ANOTHER SPEECH BY GLADSTONE.

Gladstone spoke at considerable length. He denied that the safeguards provided in the bill were dictated by distrust of the Irish people. On the contrary they were inserted as a consequence of mistrust that was felt by others. Mr. Gladstone argues that the fundamental fear of those who attacked the home rule measure was that the Irish people would necessarily do wrong; that the administration of the country would necessarily be changed. [Cries of "Hear, hear."] In regard to questions as to the power of veto by the bill, he stated that there was no limitation to that proposition, and in reference to the income tax, that would necessarily be as separate in Ireland as it could be in England. Of the bill generally, it proposed to give to the Irish people reasonable satisfaction to their demands without imitating the example set by a former government in the case of America. He ridiculed fear that had been expressed as to further demands on the part of Irish members if this bill were passed, and as to the question of there having been no mandate for this measure, he contended that, inasmuch as there had been no mandate for coercion or for maintaining the law, so no mandate was necessary for proposals to strengthen means of maintaining the law. He compared criticism on the bill and pointed out that no one speech agreed with another. Speaking of the measure as a plan he remarked that it might be improved, but at any rate it held the field, as also did the subject. [Loud cheers.]

GOSCHEN OPPOSES THE BILL.

In the course of an energetic speech Mr. Goschen contended that there was no analogy between the position of Ireland and England and that of Norway and Sweden or Austria and Hungary. Irish and English interests, he said, were so interlaced that when they came to the financial question they would find it difficult to decide whether the income to be taxed was English or Irish. Their interests could not be dissociated. In conclusion Goschen denied that firmness could be called coercion, and said there would be no repression if there was no crime. The responsibility of weakening the ties which unite the British islands rested with the premier and his followers. Those resisting the breakup of the empire must close up their ranks and shoulder to shoulder resist the bill. [Enthusiastic cheering.]

A motion that leave be given to introduce was put by the speaker and agreed to without division amid protracted and enthusiastic cheering.

ENGLAND.

THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY KILLS HIMSELF.

LONDON, April 13.—The Earl of Shaftesbury killed himself this afternoon. He was in a cab riding through Regent street when he took his life. He drew a revolver and discharged the contents of its several chambers into his person. The corpse was conveyed to the Middlesex hospital. The suicide was 54 years old. He was the eighth earl of Shaftesbury, succeeding, October 1, 1885, to the title on the death of his father, who was a noted philanthropist. He leaves a widow, Lady Harriet, daughter of the third Marquess of Donegal, and one son and five daughters. The earl had lately been unwell and had complained of melancholy depression.

Lord Shaftesbury fired the first shot at his right temple, but missed his aim. The cabman descended from his seat and refused to proceed further, as he feared he would be shot. Lord Shaftesbury tried to persuade him to continue the drive and offered him a £5 note, but the cabman was immovable. A constable who had heard the shot fired approached the cab at this moment, when Lord Shaftesbury fired again, the ball taking effect in his temple. The constable, seeing that he was about to fire, tried to seize his arm, but failed. Lord Shaftesbury was driven in haste to the hospital. He did not speak after the shooting and died ten minutes after his arrival.

THE HOME RULE BILL.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Post's London special says: Vital propositions have been determined upon in the home rule bill. Gladstone was misreported as calling for exclusion of Irish members from Westminster, and on fiscal unity, two vital and essential propositions. It is now clear that Irish members will remain at Westminster, and that there will be considerable alteration in the proportion of Irish contributions. The prospects of the measure are accordingly improved.

TREATMENT OF THE INDIAN.

The East was horrified when Gen. Sheridan said that the popular philosophy about the Indian at the West was that "the dead Indian was the only good Indian." Of course Gen. Sheridan did not originate this phrase; he only repeated it as an expression picked up in the slang of western life. But repetition of it by him called general attention to it and made people at the East think the white settlers of the West but little better than the savages themselves. But the phrase gave an exaggerated and unjust idea of the ferocity of western people toward the Indians with whom they came in contact. We have, indeed, in many instances dealt very unjustly with the Indians; but the frequent and unavoidable conflicts with the tribes of the West have been on the whole far less chargeable with injustice and ferocity than were the conflicts in earlier times with the tribes of the East. Voices have never been wanting here to call for justice and mercy to the Indians, even when the Indians were committing great atrocities. But the conflict with the Indian, East or West, has never been entirely over till he has ceased to be an obstacle to the settlement of civilization.

The Puritan was a true Anglo-Saxon fighter and trader—and a fighter invariably when forbidden to trade. He remorselessly wiped out the Pequot and Narragansett, and then pushed on into the West, dealing in the same way with all the tribes with which he came in contact. While the Frenchman who colonized Canada was discoverer and explorer for the sake of fame and in satisfaction of the spirit of adventure, the Puritan was discoverer and explorer only to trade. New England stormed the French forts in Maine because they interfered with the fur trade of the colony; New England put her blood and treasure into the French war because it was a fight for commercial supremacy. The Frenchman was a romantic voyager, a daring explorer anxious to carry forward the flag of France and to add the Indian to the Holy Catholic church; the Puritan, hard-headed trader, warred on the Indian as a matter of pure business. He wanted his land; he was a terrible soldier, because he was an eager trader; he would rather trade than fight but was prompt to fight in order to capture the chance to trade; he wrote on his banner when he met the savage the legend "Treat, Trade or Travel,"—and, as a rule, the world over, the barbarian that blocks the way of the Anglo-Saxon who wants to trade ultimately has to travel. The Englishman's treatment of the Kaffir, the Zulu, the Hindoo, the Afghan and the Arab is identical with the conduct of the Anglo-American in wiping out the Algonquin, the Iroquois, the Delaware, the Sioux, the Comanche, the Cheyenne and the Apache in the New World. The stern salutation of the Anglo-Saxon to all other races has been "Root Hog or Die;" and in New England the Indian hog has generally gone into the Puritan pork barrel. In New England, in India, in Egypt, in Africa, in Ireland, at the South or on our Indian frontier the Anglo-Saxon holds and enforces his belief that power and property belong to those who are bold enough to capture and strong enough to keep them.

The American who arraigns England for her usage of Ireland knows perfectly well that England's title to Ireland is just as valid as our own title to the lands we have won from the Indian. It is the title of conquest. The Indian has the same sentimental grievance against the descendants of the Puritan that the Irishman has against the successors of Henry the Second, Queen Elizabeth and Cromwell. The birthright of barbarians to their soil is largely a fiction. A nation keeps its land and freedom until it loses them by folly, by disunion, by the superior strength and craft of another race that swings a keener sword in a stronger or more skillful hand. The law of nature is with man as with animals; it is the survival of the strongest. It is no moral indictment of title to say that it was won at the point of the bayonet. The sword of the Puritan was the first ploughshare of New England civilization. The savage man has no more inalienable title to his soil than a tiger to his lair; the human wild beasts must go with the tigers, when civilization with its sword slashes its way through forest and jungle. Civilization cannot starve nor halt in its march to consider the sentimental birthright of barbarians to perpetuate the black night of superstitious ignorance and degradation, which is their freedom so-called. When the freedom of a strong civilization to live and move and extend its being, finds itself stopped by the filthy freedom of barbarism, the freedom of the strong fairly forces the freedom of the weak to fight and die, to fly or surrender. The sword of Russia has exterminated the Turcoman bandits that once blighted all the peaceful industry of Central Asia. The advance of Russia to the Afghan frontier; the march of England from Ceylon to the Indus, have brought railways, peace and civilization to regions once annually desolated by a locust flight of robbers. The Indian, dead or an exile, was the Puritan's idea of "a good Indian;" and yet the New England philanthropist-politician reproaches the men of the West, because, face to face with the Indian problem, they have adopted measures vigorous enough to enable themselves to obtain and hold a lodgment in the country, though they have protected the rights of the Indian to an extent that should shame the conduct of the whites of the older states. It is a duty of humanity and civilization to protect the weak; and the West in dealing with the Indian has not so utterly forgotten this as the East did. At least, the West has protected the Indian when he was no longer an object of fear, while the East has pursued him with avarice after fear no longer existed.

A [illegible] POLICY AT MINNEAPOLIS.

The election of Hon. A. A. Ames, formerly a reporter in this city, to the mayoralty of Minneapolis is a triumph of what is called locally the "wide open" policy. Ames was mayor of Minneapolis from [illegible] to [illegible], serving three successive terms, during which no effort was made to enforce any of the laws against immorality. Saloons, gambling resorts, houses of ill-fame and the like were allowed whatever license they chose to take, entirely free from interference under a mayor who made no secret of his sympathy and fellowship with the worst elements of society. The city became notorious as a seat of flagrant vice, and attracted a crowd of gamblers and scalawags, whose like has not been seen in any other city of equal population. There grew up, naturally, a corrupt political machine which for several years controlled city affairs. This moral and political condition became at last intolerable, and two years ago the decent people rose in their wrath, and after a close contest defeated Ames, who was again a candidate, electing to the mayoralty a well known citizen and man of business, Mr. Pillsbury.

The reform was immediate and thorough as could be expected under the circumstances. The city council, which was with the new mayor for law, order and decency, enacted new ordinances under which, with a reorganized police department, the city was purified. Gamblers and courtesans went out en masse, and the city became as orderly and decent as so large a city ever gets to be. No attempt was made to do impossible things, but the administration was honest, economical and thorough.

The "Ames crowd," though defeated and held in check, kept their forces together, and in the campaign just ended made a hard fight. Pillsbury and Ames were again matched, the former nominated by the republicans, who have a majority in Minneapolis, and the latter by the democrats. Party lines were not closely drawn, and it was practically the old contest between the policy of regulation and the "wide open" policy. To the great chagrin of the "best people," Ames was elected, having nearly six thousand majority in a total vote of between twenty-four and twenty-five thousand. There is not only chagrin but surprise—pretty much the same feeling as that entertained by the law and order people of Portland when the toughs captured the meeting at the courthouse in this city six weeks ago. The Minneapolis Tribune, a paper that speaks on the right side, expresses the feeling very cleverly in a sentence—"How it happened we cannot say, but there can be no doubt that it happened."

There are several explanations, which, all taken together, account for the result. By diligent misrepresentation it was made to appear to many laboring men that Pillsbury, who is a rich manufacturer, had a "natural interest" for the rich class as against the poor class. This idea was a foolish one, because Pillsbury is one of the most liberal, as well as one of the largest employers of labor in Minnesota. Then, as the Pioneer-Press points out, Mr. Pillsbury had arrayed against him the solid saloon interest, and the vast mass of the unthinking, who are opposed to all restriction of municipal evils. That the criminal and semi-criminal classes fought him was a matter of course. But there are thousands of others, not to be so classified, whose first requirement is that they shall not be curbed in their desires. They want full permission to follow the bent of their inclinations, whithersoever that may lead them. The moderate and wise restraints which had been thrown about the liquor traffic and the evil that haunts large cities were distasteful to these people. There are always enough of them, not necessarily disposed to vice, but desirous of the opportunity to be vicious if they choose, to turn a close election. On the other hand, it is explained, the puritanical interest was even more bitter than the vicious element. When, two years ago, Mr. Pillsbury was chosen to redeem Minneapolis from the disgrace which the Ames administration had brought upon it, there were among his supporters many who conceived that his duty included the establishment of an impossible morality. Because he recognized the limitations of municipal power, and faithfully regulated where he could not prohibit, he earned the lasting enmity of these men. The same rule which leads the prohibitionists to vote for free whisky as against high license made some thousands of votes for Ames. Add to this the idea widely but mistakenly prevailing that a wide-open policy attracts visitors and stimulates business, and we have a strong array of reasons for the result. Summing it all up, the Pioneer-Press says: The unthinking forgot that license need not be licentiousness, forgot all the economies of the present administration which have saved so much to the taxpayers, forgot that capital does not seek investment where the wide-open system prevails. They will have leisure to meditate upon this by and by.

WEARY LITTLE DANCERS.

At a recent performance of "Orpheus" in New York it is stated that the children's ballet, performed by a number of little tots, ranging from four to ten years of age, was the most interesting part of the peroformance. Yet the delight of spectators who saw these weary little girls go through steps that would be considered difficult for well trained women must have been dashed with pity at the hard fate that compelled children who should have been tucked snugly in bed two hours before the performance began, to earn their living, at an age so tender and at labor so exacting and so exhaustive.

Fashionable women have been often appealed to by humane people to stop the slaughter of birds by refusing to wear their plumage as ornaments. Appeals to the fashionable women of a great city not to patronize any place of amusement the chief attraction of which is baby ballet dancers, would have a much sharper ring of humanity in them. The supply of childen for theaters has become a regular trade in New York. The business is conducted openly, and those who engage in it announce themselves ready to furnish children to theatrical performances by contract on short notice. To make the business "respectable" and prevent its interruption by the officers of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children, it is urged that great care is taken that the little ones whose sleeping hours are thus contracted shall not be subject to hardship or punishment. It is also urged that their employment is a boon to poor people. Poor indeed must parents be—poor in every element that goes to make up true and tender manhood and womanhood—who would thus shift the responsibility of their own support upon children scarcely beyond the years of babyhood. Nine times out of ten, "poor" parents who would thus inflict upon childhood burdens found heavy for mature years are poor in the fullest interpretation of the word and seize gladly upon any offer that will give them a living without earning it, even to the extent of robbing childhood of the freshness of its morning, the sweet slumber that is its due and the health and protection that is its right.

An ordinance providing that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for city employes recently passed the Boston city council and board of aldermen, but was vetoed by the mayor upon the ground that it belongs to heads of departments, and not to the city council, to regulate labor matters. The real reason of the veto is said to be the answers received to a circular addressed by the mayor to the heads of the different departments, asking information as to the number of additional men required, and the added cost to the city of an eight-hour system. These answers footed up peculiarly the sum of $1,467,758, and naturally the mayor hesitated to endorse a measure that would make this heavy draught upon the pockets of the taxpayers. When men are anxious enough to reduce a day's work by two hours to lose the two hours' wages themselves, instead of taxing the costs of the idle time upon which they insist against employers, the eight-hour system will probably not be [illegible].

The legislature of Connecticut last week passed a law providing that no child in that commonwealth under 13 years of age shall be employed in any manufacturing, mercantile or mechanical establishment. This law, absolutely without qualification, will doubtless work hardship in some cases where fatherless children depend upon struggling mothers for bread. Yet it asserts, as far as statutory enactment is able to do, a period for growth and play and rudimentary education, which is childhood's right and privilege, and leaves the responsibility of providing for the common wants of life during this period upon those who voluntarily assumed it.

Howell E. Jackson, U. S. senator from Tennessee who has just been confirmed as U. S. circuit judge, vice Judge Baxter, deceased, is 54 years old, the ablest lawyer in the senate from the South. He served three years in the Confederate army, and was twice appointed to the supreme bench of his state. His senatorial term of service expires next March. Judge Jackson, we believe, is the first ex-Confederate soldier that has been appointed a circuit judge since the close of the war. The late Judge Baxter was a loyal Tennessean from Knoxville.

The registry lists in Chicago, previous to the election of the 6th instant, showed the names of 81,082 voters, and the poll books recorded 66,547 votes. Returns give the republicans a majority in all the wards of about 6500 votes, which just about tallies with the best estimate of the fraudulent vote counted for Carter Harrison a year ago, and justifies the charges then made that on a fair count and honest vote he would have been defeated by 6000 majority.

An Eastern Oregon paper resents the statement that the month of March was rough on stock in that region, and declares that the "branding iron, instead of the rough March weather, is responsible for the depletion of the herds of many small owners." In proof of this assertion the report of the grand jury of Baker county is cited.

It is said that Gen. Crook was relieved from command in Arizona at his own request. Senator Manderson, of Nebraska, so informs the people of Omaha, who, it seems, petitioned the president to place Crook in charge of the department of the Platte. His return to Omaha is to be celebrated by a public reception.

MEN IN CONTRAST.

The contrasts of men are often the contrasts of history. Abraham Lincoln, the savior of the Union, and Jefferson Davis, who sought to be architect of its ruin, were both born in Kentucky, Davis in June, 1808, and Lincoln in February, 1809. Davis and Lincoln both served in the war with the Indian chief Black Hawk; Davis was a lieutenant of regulars under Gen. Atkinson and Lincoln a captain of Illinois volunteers. Davis took his seat in the United States senate in 1847, the same year that Lincoln entered the house of representatives. Davis has survived Lincoln more than twenty years; the glory of Lincoln grows and glows brighter every year, while Davis has sunk into such complete obscurity that few Southern newspapers of consequence stoop to-day to do him reverence, and not a few of them speak of him with ill-disguised contempt as a man of narrow mind and bigoted prejudices, whose passion and folly cost the Confederacy dear. Davis kept Joe Johnston in obscurity and trusted Pemberton and Bragg with defense of Vicksburg and Chattanooga. Then he replaced Johnston with Hood in July, 1864. He had an insane admiration for Albert Sidney Johnston, who was slain at Shiloh, and a petty dislike of Beauregard. In a public letter a few years ago he described "Stonewall" Jackson, rather than Lee, as the greatest military genius of the Confederacy. Davis has steadily dwindled as a large historical figure since the close of the war; he was an accidental president of the Confederacy, and displayed no statesmanlike quality from the beginning to the end of the struggle. The recent publication of the original draft of Seward's letter of instructions to Minister Adams, in May, 1861, shows that Lincoln in a masterly manner revised and corrected the dispatch after it came from the hand of the secretary of state.

The Chicago Tribune recently published this dispatch, with the following comment:

Mr. Lincoln revised the original draft with rare sagacity, smoothing down asperities, modifying overstatements, and strengthening weak points so that when the paper left his hands it was fairly transformed. Looked at in the light of subsequent events, it is not too much to say that Seward's draft contained grave and dangerous blunders, but that they were all modified or corrected by Mr. Lincoln with matchless skill. The errors in Seward's draft are surprising when viewed in connection with Mr. Lincoln's corrections, but no intelligent person can doubt that as the document left the president's hands it was a model state paper, tempered to the necessities of the occasion, and showing keen foresight and unerring judgment. Mr. Lincoln's corrections extended even to minute matters, and gave the document greater dignity of tone and finish of language. It may excite surprise that "the rail-splitter from Illinois" was able to amend the work of the astute Seward with such accuracy of taste and judgment, but the publication of the original draft leaves no room to doubt the fact nor to question the assertion that Mr. Lincoln's sagacity at this critical time probably averted national disaster. It shows, moreover, that Lincoln was the real head of his administration, and even while new to the duties of the presidency and surrounded by the distractions of civil war could pause to correct the diplomatic errors of a Seward.

There is a proposition, backed by the approval of a congressional committee, to cut the Indian territory up into civil territories. The plan includes a just settlement with the Indians, who have twenty times the area they need or can make use of.

VARIOUS OPINION.

Kansas City Journal: The worst calamity that can befall labor is to make its products insecure.

New York World: The democratic party, if there is a democratic party, has a majority of forty two in the house. If the tariff bill should be beaten in the house we think no further evidence can be required to prove that there is in fact no democratic party.

New York Sun: The labor arbitration bill just passed by the house of representatives allows the arbitrators to compel the production of the books and papers of railroad companies, but prohibits the production of the books of any labor organization. Is this equality before the law?

New York Tribune: It is not strange that Mr. Bayard is tired, especially as people interested in the fishery question are discovering that the state department is phenomenally ignorant and incapable, and meanwhile the Chinese question looms with peril in it for presidential aspirants.

Boston Globe: It matters mighty little after all to the great and general public who gets the post-offices of the country so the mail is regularly delivered. The democratic party got along very well without them for twenty-four years and will survive any amount of mugwump monkeying with them for the next thirty months.

Senator Fair Does not Surrender.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The statement that Senator Fair is in correspondence with his former wife, looking to their reunion, which has been going the rounds for some time, was to-day shown the senator, and when questioned as to the correctness of the statement, the Nevada senator replied: "I pay but little attention to what I see concerning myself, but in this case I will notice what seems to have originated with possibly some over-enterprising representative of the press. I will give my friends," continued the senator, "fifty years' notice when I take such action as I am alleged to have in contemplation."

The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring, Tra-La!

The prices we show this Spring, tra la,
Breathe promise of custom and gold,
As we pack up the goods we sell, tra la,
We welcome the cash they bring, tra la,
And a Summer of trade we can hold,
And a Summer of trade we can hold.
And that's what we mean when we say and
we sing.
Oh, send on your orders for goods this Spring,
Tra la la la la, tra la la la la,
The money we'll make this Spring.

The friends we have this Spring, tra la,
Have something to do with the case.
They've got to take into their heads, tra la,
The bargains we offer this Spring, tra la,
The bargains we offer this Spring.
And that's what we mean when we say and
we sing.
Oh, send in your orders for goods this Spring,
Tra la la la la, tra la la la la,
Catch on to our bargains this Spring.

Low prices will talk this Spring, tra la,
"That is our strong hold," say we.
You've got to send orders at once, tra la,
Or else, you'll get left very bad, tra la,
With the dole fulest look on your face, tra la,
With the dole fulest look on your face.
And that's what we mean when we say and
we sing.
Don't wait so long; you'll get left in the Spring.
Tra la la la la, tra la la la la,
Now order your goods for Spring.

REMEMBER:

That we have everything to fit the male sex, and can fit a child of three years, or the fattest and largest man in the land.

Visitors are always welcome, and we take pleasure in showing our goods, whether they buy or not.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

FISHERMEN ON A STRIKE.—[illegible] fishermen along the line [illegible] on the Columbia [illegible] along the line There are some fish in the river, probably not very many but there are a number of fishermen some distance above Astoria who would like to fish and who would probably catch enough by the 1st of May to place themselves out of debt if they were permitted But there is some sort of a strike ordered by some leaders at Astoria fellows who would not work under any circumstances and who [illegible] to as long as they can help it The [illegible] cents per fish caught with [illegible] cents per fish caught with [illegible] The cannery men say that they [illegible] pay more than [illegible] and [illegible] The canneries at Astoria are generally not ready for work, while those some distance above are and the men who fish for the latter would work if allowed but if they go out drifting at night their nets are cut and destroyed It would seem as if any man who wanted to fish should be allowed to do so and any one who did not want to fish should have that privilege, but in these days of strikes business is managed differently and a few scallywags who won't work will destroy the property of the man who tries to work and make a living for himself and family

INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE.—When the case of J Nelson, charged with robbing Joseph Doughty was examined into in the police court Monday McInery confessed the whole business and claimed he had made an equal division of the spoils with Nelson M F Mulkey Nelson's attorney quoted from the statute the section which provides that the testimony of an accomplice, unsupported and not corroborated by other evidence shall not be considered sufficient testimony to convict a person of a crime and McInery was the only [illegible] of any weight and stood [illegible] He [illegible] asked for Nelson's discharge Yesterday Judge Dement passed upon the case He said the provisions of the statute were [illegible] and that while he expressed no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, he did not think that under the majority of decisions the evidence in the case justified him in holding defendant to answer Nearly all the strong testimony was that of McInery who confessed himself an accomplice, and the evidence of the other witnesses was not corroborative enough to justify him in holding the defendant to answer before the grand jury The case against Nelson was dismissed, and McInery was committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury Doughty was held as a witness

ARRESTED FOR ARSON.—Yesterday morning M Morris the tailor was arrested by Constable Bixley on a warrant from Davis's court on a charge of arson Morris formerly kept a place on Washington street near Fourth, and between 2 and 3 o'clock on the morning of December 2, 1885 a fire occurred there The building was partially burned and the stock of cloth and trimmings contained therein was somewhat damaged It is said Morris was insured for $4000 When an inventory of the stock was taken its value was set down by the appraisers at $2000 Two days after the fire W J Quinn instituted suit in the state circuit court against Morris to recover $2911 38 for goods sold and delivered, and on January 6 Morris confessed judgment in Quinn's favor, and on the 7th an execution was issued Two suits were also brought against Morris by E. Raas & Co of San Francisco, one in the state circuit court for $500, for merchandise sold and delivered during the past six years, and the second in the U S circuit court for $819 51 Judgment was rendered against Morris in all of the cases In default of $1000 bonds Morris was committed to the county jail to await his examination which will be held to-day unless a continuance is asked The nature of the evidence against him will then be made public

LOW FIGURES FOR SEWER CONSTRUCTION.—The sewer in Harrison street which has been the cause of more discussion and hubbub than any thing else in this section except the bridge across the Willamette and the improvement of Corbett street seems in a fair way of being settled at last Bids for its construction were opened by the committee on streets at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon There were five bidders, who offered to complete the work for the various sums, as follows J D Coleman, cement pipe, $7878 78, S Wilcox, cement pipe $[illegible]01 36, Oregon Pottery company terra cotta, $66[illegible] 52 John Gibson terra cotta $[illegible] 28 W W Cason, brick sewer $7650 00 The committee will recommend that the contract be awarded to the Pottery company, they being the lowest bidders. The row over this matter has proved productive of more good than over Corbett street, as it is generally considered that the job has been let for at least $3000 less than it would have been had there not been so much competition

DISCHARGED FROM CUSTODY.—The case of Sun Hock the Chinaman accused of robbing and [illegible] the woman Kim Toy, was decided by Judge Dement yesterday He remarked that although [illegible] unlike the Nelson case in nature it came under a similar rule That a crime had been committed he had no doubt [illegible] if the prisoner be given the benefit [illegible] the doubt as to whether or not he committed the crime he must be released The evidence was exceedingly conflicting and what one side called white the other with equal earnestness called black The fact that all the testimony was from Chinese was also taken into consideration in deciding whether or not the prisoner should be held The state had tried to connect the prisoner with the crime and his counsel had about as effectually proven he had nothing to do with it. He [illegible] was satisfied that the prisoner if held would never be convicted and to save a useless expense ordered his discharge Hock was confined in the city [illegible] all over three weeks

FINANCIAL TROUBLE BETWEEN BARBERS.—Last July C H T Cooper sold a half interest in a barber shop at the lower end of First street to John Jones for $200 Latterly Cooper sold the remaining interest to Jones for $[illegible] and went into the laundry business at Second and B streets with Patterson & Grant soon after Monday Jones had Cooper arrested in [illegible] precinct justice court for obtaining money under false pretenses He alleges that when Cooper sold out to him there was a [illegible] on the barber chairs Cooper does not deny that he owes some money on the chairs but says Jones was well aware of this fact when he purchased the remaining half interest and that he Cooper has not refused to liquidate the indebtedness Yesterday [illegible] arraigned Cooper waived examination [illegible] to appear before the grand jury and was held [illegible]

HE DID NOT [illegible]—A few days since [illegible] Mrs [illegible] Kelly deputized George [illegible] to go up to Eastern Oregon [illegible] [illegible] It seems that Mrs. [illegible] Ross Keenan [illegible] Oregon at the same time and accidentally [illegible] and Linville passed a [illegible] several occasions At last they reached [illegible] City together and it appears that Mrs. Keenan informed her friends there of Linville's conduct and they decided to give him warning to leave the town in fifteen minutes Next morning Linville was informed of the decision of the meeting and [illegible] that he had been following up and watching Mrs. Keenan long enough [illegible] that he was traveling on [illegible] and should leave when he got ready

STREET RAILROADS FOR THE WEST END.—The transcontinental street railway company are [illegible] out the orders for the iron and cars necessary for the proposed extension of their lines [illegible] work will probably be commenced [illegible] within thirty days. The route of the extension [illegible] by the council differs materially from that first proposed and is as follows [illegible] [illegible] Third to North [illegible] Montgomery [illegible] The track on Morrison [illegible] [illegible] down Yamhill [illegible] Third [illegible] [illegible] people

[illegible] SENT TO PRISON.—[illegible] farmer who [illegible] [illegible] Frank [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] taken to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] some months pending his examination [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] manslaughter [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SOLD OUT A GROCERY.—January 1 [illegible] Young who for a number of years kept a grocery at the upper end of Fourth street sold out to Edgar E Lowell for $2,700 and at the same time gave his bond to Lowell for $500 that he would not engage in the same business in Portland for a certain number of years Recently A Ferrara disposed of his grocery business to [illegible] Cole [illegible] Young is in the store with Cole, according to all accounts as a manager Lowell seems to think Mr. Young is in reality the proprietor and yesterday brought suit in the state circuit court to have the $500 bond forfeited and for interest on the same from date and the costs and disbursements of the action [illegible] Cole is the son in law of Mr. Young

CREAMERY ESTABLISHED.—Messrs H M Pierce & Co of East Portland have settled the question of pure butter in this community to a limited extent at least by the establishment on E street near Fourth of a creamery in that city They have contracted for 150 gallons of fresh milk per day and at 9 o'clock each morning the curious are invited to come and see them separate the cream from the milk in the modern process of butter making The samples of both cream and butter furnished are pure and delicious A few such establishments in and about this city would settle the question of oleomargarine in this market without the aid of the dairy commissioner

THE NARROW GAUGE.—Work is progressing favorably on the narrow gauge road Jeffery is [illegible] work on his rock contract near Oswego and when that is finished the grade will be completed nearly to Elk rock. At this place a wharf will be constructed, at which probably a portion of the iron will be landed, as it will likely arrive here during high water The managers still have their eyes fixed upon the city levee as their objective point and all rumors about the purchase of terminal property at any other place can safely be set down as premature

ADDRESS TO THE PENNSYLVANIANS.—At the first regular meeting of the Pennsylvania association this evening at C A R hall First and [illegible] streets Hon F B McElroy will deliver an address and others will give some interesting data The list has reached sixty and applications continue to come in The membership is open to all former Pennsylvanians now residing in the Northwest and it is hoped there will be a full turnout this evening of members and those intending to become part of the association.

REMOVAL.—Hausman & Neustadter the cigar merchants have taken a lease of Harmon's old stand, 125 First street, and will move about May 1 The store is being renovated and improved and a staircase to the second floor from the front door is to be put in.

MEETING OF [illegible].—Quite a number of [illegible] people met at the [illegible] of John McCown & Idleman [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Will [illegible] H M [illegible] J P Shaw H M [illegible] F Miller [illegible] Will [illegible] were appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws relative to a permanent organization There were quite a number present all enthusiastic and as there are a great many Ohio people in the city the organization will [illegible] being one of the largest on the coast Adjourned to meet [illegible]

ADDITIONAL CHURCH PROPERTY.—The First Presbyterian church has bought the residence property of Mr. J B Gill on the south east corner of Eleventh and Alder for $13,000 This with the former purchase gives the church half a block of ground One hundred feet square was not deemed enough for the use of the church and some time ago the trustees negotiated for the purchase of thirty feet on the east end of Mr Gill's quarter block without success After the sale of the present church property at advantageous figures it was decided to buy the entire property It is likely that the residence will be the future parsonage

NEW WHARF.—A H Johnson [illegible] about to improve his river front property on the East side by constructing a wharf forty feet wide and about 400 feet long, between I and J streets It will add materially to the appearance of things on the river and will doubtless prove a good investment It is understood the contract has already been let to Joseph Smith

HORSE EXHIBITION.—On Saturday, May 1 an exhibition of horses will be given at McMinnville Owners of horses will bring in their favorite nags of various breeds and form a procession which will move at 1 o'clock The object is simply to show what sort of stock old Yamhill raises and a permanent society may be the outcome of the exhibit

ESTRELLA

To-night the long delayed and much expected performance of Estrella will take place at the Casino This opera has had an extraordinary run in London and besides being replete with musical gems is one of the funniest of comic operas Miss Hall will introduce "Salve Maria" by Mercadante, and the favorite baritone Mr Murray will sing "Let all Obey" The argument is as follows

ACT I.

Estrella, the daughter of Phylloxera, is in love with Lorenzo, a young advocate but compelled by her parents to marry Lorenzo's kinsman Count Pomposo di Vesuvio The count has some doubts of his bride's affection for him and resolves to test it by disappearing the day after the wedding, and returning in disguise making it appear that he has been kidnapped by Barbary corsairs, and then killed or sold into slavery He confides this scheme to his major domo but it is overheard by Brigetta companion to Estrella, Brigetta reveals the plot to Lorenzo who determines to forestall it by having his rival seized at once In this he is assisted by friends, who disguise themselves as Moorish pirates and carry off the count immediately after the marriage ceremony

ACT II

Estrella, as countess, lives in the palace of Count di Vesuvio whose disappearance has caused great excitement. Lorenzo's friends the sham Algerines have delivered the bridegroom into the hands of real pirates and by this time no one knows what has become of him Estrella is anxious as to his fate [illegible] distressed at her own uncertain and equivocal position In the midst of this the count who is not only alive but has purchased his release, carries out his plan by returning disguised as a Hebrew money lender Estrella does not recognize him and to test her affection he gives her a touching account of his own death As he is supposed to be old and poor he enters her service in a confidential capacity but is employed in menial offices and altogether treated as of no consideration Lorenzo and Estrella's parents look down upon him and make themselves at home in his house in a manner that naturally arouses his indignation Brigetta who has penetrated his disguise is the only person who sympathizes with him His anger reaches a climax when he sees Lorenzo formally betrothed to Estrella The count declares himself to the general consternation until the doge is called upon to decide the claims of the rivals

ACT III

The doge and council assemble to try the case of the Count di Vesuvio, who demands his bride and property But it appears that by the law of Venice any one who has given himself out to be deceased is thereby dead in law and thence it is argued that the count can no longer be recognized as a living man Estrella assisted by Lorenzo, pleads to be released from the marriage contract while Brigetta undertakes to be counsel on the count's side It is decided that Count Pomposo although dead in law shall be recognized and restored to his position on condition of his relinquishing his claim to Estrella matters are thus satisfactorily arranged and all ends happily

THE BEDA WRECK.

NESTUCCA BAY, Or., April 4

On March [illegible] before sunrise a boat was seen off the mouth of our bay to all appearances manned by two or more persons They could be distinctly seen rowing, as the sea was very calm with hardly any breakers on shore The boat appeared to be traveling north It was seen off Salmon river, or four miles south of Nestucca bay on Sunday evening apparently making signals or had a sail or something spread No notice was taken of them because it was thought they were our fishermen outside

As it is impossible to descry anything ashore so say the fishermen—the face of the country looking like a wall of rock with the ocean dashing against it no doubt the boat would not attempt to land No heed was given to the matter until reading the account in THE OREGONIAN by the survivors of the wrecked schooner Beda.

A vast quantity of lumber has come ashore between Sand cape and Cape Lookout also two boats one being a zinc boat with two air tight compartments in it and some lines fast to her also three cases of bitters, one having been opened Four life preservers were found at Netart's bay one reported to have been covered with blood The finder saw sea lions attacking something in the water and bloody water came ashore The latest account is that two bodies have come ashore with the legs eaten off

The writer presumes that the boat sighted was making for the Columbia or Tillamook lighthouse and was wrecked near Netart's bay The boat in all probability contained the captain of the Beda and the missing portion of the crew

Should there not be a signal station and a light at Nestucca bay between the capes? Who knows but that some poor mariners might find a haven in its insignificant but safe port SETTLER

THE REAL LORD DOUGLAS HEARD FROM

[illegible] at this office

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1[illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Your paper of April 6th has been placed before me You must be very badly informed I am Lord Douglas and for the last four months have been at Monterey I have never been in Oregon in my life or at Santa Barbara My bankers here Donohoe & Kelly can satisfy your curiosity or Mr Shonewald [illegible] manager at Monterey I require you to write me a full apology

LORD DOUGLAS

Alright Lord Douglas here is a full apology THE OREGONIAN did not state that the genuine Lord Douglas had been swindling friends in Oregon It mentioned the actions of a man who masqueraded under several titles one of which was Lord Douglas and published a complete description of him There is no doubt that the man THE OREGONIAN described is a swindler and if he ever puts foot on Oregon soil to the knowledge of the officers he will be arrested If the description published also fits the real Lord Douglas which is not likely it is not THE OREGONIAN'S fault It is Lord Douglas's misfortune

SEVERELY HURT AND SUFFERING

[illegible] Lynch [illegible] carpenter who resides on Sixth and M streets is at present in a most unfortunate condition on account of an accident which befell him on the 8th inst while at work upon a building in Portland On the date named Mr Lynch fell from a scaffold a distance of over twenty feet to the ground striking upon his heels The concussion dislocated both ankles mashed the feet and severely strained the knee joints Both his lower limbs are now black and blue and exceedingly painful Dr Coley the attending physician gives it as his opinion that Mr Lynch will not be able to walk in less than three months

A NEW JOURNAL

A new democratic weekly paper is now in process of preparation in this city and nothing preventing will make its initial appearance on Saturday next L C Beard will have charge of the typographical and local departments, while it is whispered the editorial page will be under the direction of a well known attorney and an ex merchant both of this city It is also stated that the new journal is the outgrowth of a caucus of old time democrats of East Portland held on last Saturday evening

LIVELY MEETING

An interesting meeting was held on Saturday evening last at the hall of Lily lodge No [illegible], I O G T Delegations from Western Wave lodge of Portland Brooklyn lodge, Stella lodge of Albina [illegible] Olympia [illegible] and La Camas [illegible] Crowhurst of the International lodge of San Francisco and Z T Wright grand worthy chief templar, were present and [illegible] in the initiating of a large number of candidates

NOTES

Edward Powell of Eugene City, is visiting friends in East Portland and vicinity

Dr Wigg is having a new bay window added to his office corner Seventh and J streets

F W B[illegible] was thrown from his wagon Monday and quite severely injured He is in consequence confined to his bed

Mr Tomlinson the venerable [illegible] of [illegible] Tomlinson of this city who arrived [illegible] from Le Mars Iowa is confined to his bed with serious illness

Mrs William Schmeer returned yesterday from Salem where for several days past she has been visiting her brother Ervin Burke a student of Willamette university

The 2 year old daughter of Mr and Mrs Walter Bartel is lying at death's door, having been very ill for over three weeks The little one is not expected to live many hours Malarial fever is the ailment

The contractors on the I street bridge are now engaged in framing the bents of the structure and cutting the various timbers, so that they may be enabled to raise the new bridge in a very brief time after tearing the old one away. It is thought that travel on I street will not be impeded by this improvement longer than one day

MORE ABOUT THE LUMBER TRADE.

VANCOUVER, W T., April 12

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

Referring again to the lumber trade, I mention a few amendments to our system of doing business which I think if adopted would materially assist the Columbia river saw mill men in building up a trade in the interior where they will meet competition from the East

First—They should adopt some system of grading which will enable them to sell by list, without question

Second Their lumber will have to be trimmed and sized and seasoned

Third—Lumber from saw mills must be of standard dimensions and the business of furnishing very small pieces (except articles made from waste must be left to the planing mills

Fourth The business of supplying the trade must be left to the brokers and supplying consumers must be left to the trade

Fifth—They must be able to furnish brokers with reliable statistics and guarantee prompt shipments and ample supply

I claim that all these innovations will be to the advantage of sawmill men The improved system will simplify the business and relieve it of many contingencies to which it is now subject. To effect these changes and put themselves in a condition to compete for business at every point by rail or ship the Columbia river sawmill men must associate and be able to wield their influence solidly in furtherance of any project that is clearly for the common good

St Louis and Chicago brokers have not heretofore been able to do any business on the Pacific because they had no supply point the output of Puget sound, Coos bay and the Redwood districts being controlled by a powerful San Francisco combination, and the Columbia river being a terra incognita in trade circles, St Louis and Chicago have the capital and the disposition to compete with San Francisco and I believe they will undertake it the moment an association of Columbia river sawmill men can give them assurances of stable quotations, ample supply and prompt shipment

Everything points to a revival of trade and industry Nearly a million and a half tons of steel rails have been sold for consumption this year At least 10 000 miles of track mostly in the West will be laid with them This means also the consumption of vast quantities of other materials, notably timber the employment of great numbers of men and the distribution in the channels of trade of hundreds of millions of dollars that have been hoarded in the banks for several years. With the general restoration of confidence capital will seek speculative investments labor will find remunerative employment, consumption of all commodities will increase manufactories will resume operations and the country will enter upon another period of prosperity

Sawmill men in other localities are getting ready to move on the first of the tide Puget sound is sending lumber to eastern points by rail at this time and threatens through its complete organization to monopolize the interior trade as it now does the ocean trade when the Cascade division is finished The redwood interests also through their organization, have established facilities at Port Costa and Benicia for handling their goods by rail and are now supplying dimension shingles mouldings and finishing lumber to points east of the Mississippi river Wisconsin, Michigan Minnesota and Arkansas through their organization are penetrating everywhere in search of trade The Columbia river mill men to be sure are making individual efforts but without organization they cannot get information even much less terms and facilities from railway companies which are the prerequisites of orders for goods If they refuse to organize they will postpone prosperity by their own acts By association they can get a place in the procession otherwise they can only sit on the fence and see it go by

Very respectfully SIANKOS

CONTINUE TIMBER CULTURE

Kittitas Localizer

The consumption of wood in the multiform uses to which it is put, and the rapid destruction of our forests, renders the subject one of significant consideration The supply should be kept up in some way to preserve this much needed want The congress of the United States had this object in view when the timber culture law was enacted The success of the experiment may not have been quite as satisfactory as it should have been But the perpetuation of it should be continued, particularly in the large prairie districts of the United States where the absence of timber is a great detriment to the growth and development of said treeless districts. An effort is being made in the present congress to repeal the tree-culture act. The wisdom of such movement is of doubtful utility The better plan would be to perpetuate the law, but make it binding on the parties to comply with its requirements The law is designed for a good purpose, and if strictly carried out would result in great benefit to the country generally There are certain species of timber that can be grown that are valuable and not indigenous. This is notably true of hard woods, which are almost wholly wanting east of the mountains The walnut and locust, both valuable timbers, can be grown on the prairies with success The most of the kinds planted on tree claims, such as the Lombardy poplar and balm of Gilead, or cottonwood, have a value for wood alone box-elder is a hard wood that might be utilized for some purposes to which hard wood is employed, can be grown also, and is valuable besides for sugar making Wood, however, is a useful article in every household, and to have a supply of one's own raising renders such kinds valuable for fuel alone Fifty years hence the want of timber will be much more apparent for any and all purposes than it is now.

"Varium et mutabile semper femina"—Virgil

Lightly she mocked with jest and quip
And a curl of her red disdainful lip

Lightly she laughed as he rode away
In the golden gleam of a dying day.

Spurring his steed with a tightened rein,
At the sound of her gay Auf weidersehen,

And cursing the cruel Fate that set
His heart at the feet of a vain coquette

But the restless hound she held in check
Felt the hand that lay on his shaggy neck

Quiver and stir while the shadows grew
Dusky and dark in the tremulous blue

Of her April eyes, and a weary sigh
Broke unawares in her airy cry

"Ay, these are the times of Greed and Gold
And Love is a fashion too old—too old!"

—Life.

Powderly for Governor of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia Times.

If the democratic candidate for governor was to be chosen within the next thirty days, Terence V Powderly, a man unthought of six weeks ago would pretty certainly be nominated by acclamation He is not a candidate never will be a candidate is honestly and earnestly averse to any personal participation in politics but his address to the labor interests of the country has stamped him as the clearest boldest and most conscientious statesman of the land on the most vital issue before the people and in the present current of public sentiment Gen Beaver would be madly "electioneerin' for a lickin'" by making a campaign against Powderly What public currents may be controlling five or six months hence when a democratic ticket shall be nominated none can forecast but it must be evident to the most casual observer that there will be higher and greater aims to command the attention of the democrats than a cut throat threshing over again of the old Wallace-Randall straw

The Queen as a Journalist.

London Truth

The queen herself wrote the curious paragraph in the Court Circular in which the news of the Duchess of Connaught's confinement was described as "joyful tidings." Considering the prodigious number of her majesty's grandchildren, there is nothing particularly "joyful" in the arrival of another In a few years the descendants of the queen and Prince Albert will be sufficiently numerous to form a tolerably large club The extravagant phrases which royal personages so often use are no doubt due to their enormous self-consciousness which leads them to take the most exaggerated views of the most ordinary circumstances in the lives of their relatives

"Christian" and "Heathen"

New York Evening Post.

The American board of commissioners for foreign missions is appealing for men who will go from the United States to China to convert the Chinese to Christianity We should like a chance to publish a report of a joint debate say in Foo Chow between a missionary from the Christian country which in 1886 allows Chinamen to be killed and then tries to evade responsibility for the slaughter and a Confucian representative of the heathen country which in 1878 paid a thumping indemnity for mob outrages upon foreigners

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

OREGON

Wm Kirby, one of the pioneer citizens of Arlington, died last week

George Thornton, of Grant's Pass, while cutting wood badly mutilated his left hand.

The agricultural firm of Staver & Walker are building a big warehouse at La Grande

The mother of Hon. John Hawley, living about four miles from Dayton, is dangerously ill

The mail route between Heppner and Pendleton is to be cut down from six times a week to tri-weekly

Elias Underwood of McMinnville cut a three inch gash in his shin the other day while chopping wood

Thomas Hood, a mechanic in the Grant's Pass sash and door factory, lost some fingers in the machinery the other day

H. G Boardman, of McMinnville, had a large tumor removed from his neck which had been growing for twelve years.

George Wade, an old settler on Big Butter creek, Morrow county, and a highly respected citizen, died at his home last week

Baker City has had a baby show The prize for the prettiest baby was awarded to the child of Mr and Mrs Wallace Travillion

Frank Young was thrown off a wagon attached to a runaway team near Suver, Polk county, Friday, and had his left thigh badly lacerated

Mr Montgomery, keeper of a livery stable at Corvallis, was kicked by a horse on Thursday last, from the effects of which he died on Saturday morning

Jacksonville Sentinel Another engine of greater horse power has been put in the quartz mill and operations will be resumed next week on quartz from the New Eldorado

At the April term of the county commissioners court of Jackson county an order was passed rescinding one previously made placing a certain bounty on the scalps of wild animals

Peter Riddle, who lived on the McDaniel's place, below Independence, has been missing since last Sunday It is believed he has become insane. A large crowd of men and boys have been scouring the woods in search of him

There is no question about water being more abundant and easier to find in Morrow county now than it was ten years ago Canyons which were then as dry as a powder-house now exhibit rivulets of pure water in every little depression

Prescott & Veness, Buena Vista, have moved their logging camp from their winter quarters at Buena Vista to the mountains about ten miles west of Fort Hoskins. They will also run a camp in the Coast range mountains on the O P R. R.

Lexington Blade Snow is still too deep in the mountains where Walter Kirk was lost last winter for the rescuing party to hunt for his remains His friends are preparing to explore the fated locality just as soon as they can do so to advantage

Two prisoners who were confined in the Arlington jail made their escape one night last week by filing the window bars in two The jailer did not discover that his boarders had departed until he took their breakfast to the prison next morning

The U S hotel at Linkville was injured to the extent of $500 last Friday, by fire The place is without defense, notwithstanding that a few hundred dollars would lay pipes all over the city and sufficient pressure of water not less than ninety feet high.

Hannah Dabler, of Ashland, states in the Tidings that her husband, Aaron L Dabler, left Ashland February 25 and has not since been heard from by his family He is 41 years of age, light complexion, stoutly built, had a large mustache and wore common duck clothing

Acme correspondence Eugene Guard The body of Chris Barger's son, who has been lost for some time, was found the other day in a drift, by some Indians It seems that he had attempted to cross Lake creek during high water and was drowned The body had been in the water about four weeks

Polk county Itemizer James Harvey, who left this county a few weeks ago and is now living in Morrow, Grass valley, Eastern Oregon, was getting off his horse up there the other day when his foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged quite a distance, the animal stepping on his leg and bruising it quite badly

On Tuesday last a fire occurred in Lakeview, destroying the livery stable, the saloon of Miller & Miller and the barber shop The chief hotel of the place was also in great danger, but was saved by extraordinary exertion Two horses were burned in the livery stable The loss is not reported, and the origin of the fire is unknown

Another old landmark—the oldest building in Baker City in fact—was torn down the past week to make room for a brick structure to be erected by J P Bowen In early days the building was used for saloon purposes, and drinks were paid for in gold dust, some of which fell to the ground. Since the raising of the building the loose soil has been carefully washed and several dollars of the spilled been saved

Linkville Star Linkville's business men and houses consist of seven stores, four saloons, three hotels, three blacksmith shops a brewery, three livery and feed stables, a first class flouring mill, a sawmill, one sash and door factory, a harness shop, one drug store, a butcher shop, the U S telegraph office, four doctors, four lawyers, besides a number of first-class mechanics, wagon-makers, etc. and last but not by any means the least, one printer and his devil

McMinnville Campus Miles Henderson, the young man we mentioned yesterday as walking in his sleep, left the college Thursday afternoon, since which time he has not been seen He is a son of T B Henderson of Amity, and it is supposed he started for home and in attempting to cross the railroad bridge he has fallen into the river and drowned A thorough search is being made for him Mr Henderson is about 17 years old, of dark complexion, five feet six inches high has scar on left cheek, and has dark hair and eyes He is supposed to be slightly demented Young Henderson was subsequently found and taken to the home of his parents.

Bunch Grass Blade The boards of registration appointed by the county court received no orders to the contrary, so some of them proceeded to obey original instructions The Lexington board did considerable registering during the three days allotted, as also did Ione and Wells Springs. Heppner did not register In looking over the list of citizens registered in Lexington one is struck with the small per cent. of foreign-born citizens, there being but six—four of English and two of German nativity A good many citizens did not register on account of the supreme court decision as to the unconstitutionality of the law, so no exact estimate of the number of voters in the precincts can yet be made The number registering in Lexington was 120

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Superintendent Roycroft has returned to Victoria from the islands. After a close search no Indians, who could have been implicated in the Dring-Miller murder, were discovered.

The Rev Dr Annear, who had devoted many years of his life to mission service among the aboriginal tribes of western and central Africa, and who has been ailing for some time past, died Thursday at St. Joseph's hospital in Victoria. He was over 70 years of age

A dispatch from Ottawa regarding Chinese restriction says Correspondence submitted to parliament shows that the imperial authorities hold the question of restricting the Chinese immigration does not involve imperial interest, and is a Canadian question only

Victoria Colonist The condemned man Sproule, has not yet been made aware of the final decision that the law will in his case, have to take its course He has hitherto been more sanguine than circumstances would warrant, and it is thought that news will have a very decided effect on him, his nerves having been very strung by the hopes and doubts of so many reprieves

Nanaimo Free Press The eldest daughter of Mr James Malpass, of Cedar district, on Sunday morning met with a severe accident The girl was getting over a log on the farm with a pair of open scissors in her hand when she stumbled, and in the fall the blades of the scissors were driven up to the rivets in her shoulder The blood spurted in streams, which the mother checked as much as possible. However the girl became unconscious and remained so two days, being still in a critical condition

MINING NOTES

Grant's Pass Courier Charles Feilt and W Barnett picked up a sixteen ounce nugget the other day on old Slug Bar on Althouse creek That famous old bar for big nuggets is evidently full of them yet.

Victoria Colonist The influx of population from all parts to the scene of the gold discoveries on Granite creek continues to increase A number of men left by this morning's New Westminister steamer for "the mines that [illegible] in the spring, tra la."

WASHINGTON

Milk is delivered in Seattle at the rate of sixteen quarts for $1

Thomas H. Cavanaugh, of Olympia, has gone east for a three week's visit in Kansas.

The Odd Fellows of Olympia are arranging for an excursion to Seattle, on the 26th of April.

Oysterville Journal The quacking of 10,000 geese may be heard on almost any evening now, as flock after flock settle themselves on Shoalwater bay after their prolonged daily flight from the south

Joel Miller, of Seattle, recently fractured his left arm, just above the wrist, so seriously that it will be several months before he again has the use of it.

Judge Langford, of Walla Walla, is at Assotin City holding court for that county The judge is strongly in favor of the annexation of Northern Idaho to Washington territory

Henry Willis, of Waitsburg, was thrown from his wagon the other day and dragged some distance by the lines. His face and head were badly cut and his lower limbs temporarily paralyzed

Last Monday there arrived in Olympia, from Ripley county, Mo , a party of emigrants, in search of a home in the northwest. They are a sober, intelligent party, and in search of homes. They state that if a proper location is found they will be immediately followed by fifty two families

The executive board of the Puget sound Chautauqua assembly have called a meeting of Chautauquans for Friday, April 23, Shakespeare day, in Seattle, to form a permanent Chautauquan organization, to provide for a Chautauquan assembly this summer and for other purposes of interest to the association

There is a girl who seems to have peculiar notions of breach-of-promise cases, for she threatens to sue her own father for breach of promise She explains that the old gentleman first gave his consent to her marriage with her lover and then withdrew it, and that in consequence her beau got tired of waiting and has gone off with another girl

LOGGING NOTES

Olympia Partisan I C Ellis is running an independent logging camp He sells wherever he can get the most money

Logging camps in the vicinity of Olympia are running on full time and employ large crews The bays both east and west are literally covered with logs

W O Bush has moved his logging camp out further on the road into some new timber that he owns. He has made an offer and is informed that he can purchase the entire plant owned by the Tacoma Mill company known as the Morris camp Should he consummate the trade, he is talking of cutting a couple of short canals and connect his stream on the ground with the Des Chutes river, and with the Sound by a flume over the falls

IDAHO

Lewiston has a free reading room Travelers will find THE OREGONIAN on file there

Men are now at work taking down the old telegraph line between Lewiston and Fort Lapwai The material will be used toward the completion of the telephone line between the former place and Moscow, which will be in operation by the 1st of May

Lewiston Teller Wartick confessed fully to the killing of Savage, who was missing from Warren's a few weeks ago, on the South Fork of Salmon, and told where he buried the body, which was found as he indicated He was shot three times, once in the knee and twice in the body,

STOCK AND RANGE

Dayton (W T) Chronicle The shipment of cattle over the Northern Pacific assumed a larger importance last year than is generally thought. According to figures furnished by Mr R B Wilson, the company's live stock agent, there were shipped from this country from the 1st of May to the 1st of September, 1885, 38,070 head of cattle Most of them were shipped into the Montana stock ranges, but 2300 were taken to Chicago

A Dayton, W T , paper says George A Kelly's English coach horse "Black Coach" died Thursday morning from spasmodic cholera. A post mortem examination was made and the stomach was found to be ruptured and the whole interior of the horse presented the appearance of having been in a high state of inflammation The animal was valued at $2500 and is a serious loss to the horse growers of this county

Oregon Sentinel Jackson county horse-breeders suffered quite a loss when they allowed Rob Westrop's well known draft stallion Turk to leave this portion of the state There are many fine colts in the valley sired by Turk principally owned by John Toopper, John Sizemore, David Birdsey, S P Jones and others, all of whom are proud of their stock and can recommend the horse wherever he goes Turk is now the property of C D Morgan of Pine valley, Union county

FARM NOTES

Olympia paper Columbus White, a well known farmer of Chambers's prairie, reports that the prospects are flattering in that portion of Thurston county for all kinds of crops It is gratifying to know that farmers living in the southern, western and northern portions of the county are rendering similar reports

Dayton W T , Chronicle From parties who shipped their grain via the grain chutes on Snake river in Garfield county last season we learn that the chutes are practically valueless, nearly all the grain so conveyed to the river being rejected upon its arrival in Portland One lot sold for but 25 cents a bushel and when it left the farm from which it was raised was equal to any grown in the territory It seems that the grain becomes so discolored by the friction as it passes through the tin lined pipes or boxing that it is rendered unmerchantable

COMMERCIAL.

TUESDAY April 13

The visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada this week is given as 4 68 497 bushels a decrease in the past week of 1 8[illegible] 000 bushels This decrease is very marked being about double the usual amount of late and much larger than any week since the decline set in

Manufacturers throughout Connecticut and Massachusetts report a fair demand for their products with the prospects good for increased activity as soon as the season has become a little further advanced With but few exceptions they are running on full time with their order books well filled. The paper mills at Holyoke and vicinity are working up to their full capacity

Buyers in both English and continental markets are operating freely in all styles of rice especially the Burmese and other round grains which are abnormally low and comparatively cheaper than other grades The movement appears to be strictly legitimate for account of local dealers who have been carrying stocks of minimum proportions for a long period but who now feeling that a rise is imminent are disposed to carry a full hand There has also been a considerable amount purchased against freighting engagements for West Indian and South American ports

FREIGHTS—Two iron and two wooden vessels are at hand disengaged The market is quiet but steady without shippers showing any anxiety to do business

WHEAT—The cable quotes a range of prices but add is that the figures are nominal for the most part New York and Chicago fell away at noon Locally the market is very quiet but values may be termed steady

OATS—Receipts fair but are largely for shipment account and the market is not fully supplied there request for local needs being good Values are steady

WOOL—Receipts so far have been mostly for San Francisco shipment and the local market finds nothing much to engage its attention

EGGS—Free receipts last night but most holders are firm for 1½c

CHICKENS—Quiet at $3@4 as to quality Supplies are ample

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK April 13—Exports of domestic cottons the past week have been below the average but that is a feature usual to this period of the season for shipments. The movement for the week was 618 packages and since the 1st of January 64 677 packages against 55,252 packages the same time last year and 46 862 in 1884. The tone of the market continues very steady with new business confined to actual requirements In underwear there is fair trade while clothing woolens are in steady demand for immediate and later delivery

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK April 13—Government bonds were dull and steady Stocks were again strong first prices generally showing small advances and during the first hour there were further fractional gains but traders who bought yesterday and the day before for time and other large operators who were not ready to see the market advance so rapidly became active sellers of stocks and in this they were aided by renewed sales for short account resulting in a decline which continued until about 1 o'clock The market closed about steady with a small fractions of the lowest figures of the day and the declines as compared with last evening, of ⅛ to ¾
